EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Parramatta Dental Surgery has a perfect 5-star rating which is genuinely impressive, but with only 138 reviews compared to competitors averaging 200, some new patients scrolling through their options might overlook you simply because others look more established. The good news is your quality is already there — you just need more people talking about it.

RATING ANALYSIS

What your star rating means

A 5.0-star rating means that when someone is choosing between you and a competitor sitting at 4.6 stars, you win that comparison every single time — people notice that difference, especially when it comes to something as personal as a dentist. The problem is, if a nervous new patient sees a competitor with 200 reviews and you with 138, they might feel safer going with the place that looks busier and more trusted, even if your actual quality is higher.

REVIEW ANALYSIS

Review count vs competitors

You're about 62 reviews behind the average competitor, which sounds like a lot but is very catchable — if you get just 10 to 15 new reviews a month, you'd close that gap in under 6 months and start pulling ahead. Right now, every week that passes without new reviews is a week your competitors look a little more popular than you to someone searching for a dentist in Parramatta.

PRIORITY ACTIONS

The 3 things to do first

- Starting this week, have your receptionist send every patient a simple text message after their appointment saying 'Thanks for coming in today — if you have 2 minutes, we'd love a Google review' with a direct link to your Google review page.
- Take 10 minutes this weekend to reply to your existing reviews — even just a warm one-liner like 'Thanks so much, we loved having you in!' — because new patients read those replies and it shows them there's a real, caring person running the practice.
- Once a month, pull up your Google Business profile, check how many reviews you have, and write the number down — that's all you need to do to see if things are moving in the right direction.

EXPECTED OUTCOME

What to expect in 60 days

If you start asking for reviews consistently after every appointment, it's realistic to add 20 to 40 new reviews over the next 60 days, which means more people choosing you with confidence when they're searching for a dentist nearby. That kind of momentum typically translates into noticeably more new patient calls and bookings, especially from people who've just moved to the area or are looking to switch dentists.
